Service Agreements for Healthcare Informatics

Count on us as your patients count on you

How is your healthcare informatics evolving?

Stakeholders throughout your enterprise face continuous change and multiple pressures. For your hospital to deliver consistently high-quality patient care, your IT infrastructure must deliver accordingly.

"I'm concerned about system compatibility and uptime. How can I protect systems and keep them secure, too? The same goes for data – we need to be able to access it, store it, and protect it. I also need to be able to integrate workflows and support caregivers with distributing their images and reports."

"As my specialty changes, my diagnostic confidence relies on access to the latest clinical enhancements and improved clinical functionality on the programs I work with. Patient data needs to be secure, of course, but also in a format that allows me to share images and findings with my colleagues."

I'm a clinician and want to spend more time on patients, not on managing systems. I don't have time for disruptions to my clinical workflows or struggling with how to learn labor-intensive software."

"Instead of drowning in data, we have to be able to consolidate information with informatics infrastructures. What's more, the right people need to have access to that data at the right time – with support for audit controls, too."

IT is critical to our competitive edge. It needs to create an environment in which efficiency gains are possible – and to provide a basis for reliable business planning by helping colleagues and departments share information."

Want to master these challenges? Turn to reliable, secure informatics solutions backed up by comprehensive services that help you get the most from your IT investments, today and tomorrow.
